March 1, 2021 – The Canadian Association of Professional Immigration Consultants (“CAPIC”) met with Ms. Jenny Kwan, M.P., NDP Critic for Immigration, Refugees, Citizenship and Housing, to discuss pressing Canadian immigration matters. The focus of the meeting was immigration’s role in Canada’s post-pandemic recovery. Post-pandemic immigration levels, new immigration investment programs, and how international students will help create a stronger Canadian workforce were all topics of productive discussion.

Dory Jade, CEO, CAPIC: “CAPIC is committed to working with all parties to ensure immigration is at the forefront of Canada’s pandemic recovery efforts. New immigration investment programs will ensure Canada has the influx of financial capital essential to the country’s economic recovery, while increased immigration levels will meet Canada’s evolving labour needs.”
